Ashes for Clover-sick Soils.

It has been the custom in this section to stock down with clover and timothy. The clover, if one got a good catch, lasted two years and the timothy remained for permanent grass until in the order of things the field was plowed again. Stable manure and sometimes commercial fertilizers were the usual applications. Of late years, however, it has been almost impossible to get a good catch of clover.

Several years ago in the field opposite our house a wheelbarrow-load of hardwood ashes was upset. It was gathered up again as well as it could be, but much of it remained on the ground—probably a bushel on a spot six by eight feet. The field had been seeded for some time but the clover was growing hardly at all and the timothy was very poor. That summer the spot where the ashes were spilled came in thick and stout with clover. It was a veritable oasis in the desert and when in bloom attracted much attention from passers-by, who supposed until enlightened, that clover seed had been spilled there. A strawberry bed on which unselected wood ashes were scattered came into clovers, red, white and blue, so persistently that it choked the strawberry plants. Left to itself it gave good clover for several years.

Last season and the one before we had a bad drought. Young grass plants were burned by the sun and no one got a good catch either with a uree crop or without. On a neighbor's field of very light soil one small section received the ashes from the house; the remainder was fertilized with stable manure. It was all sown to timothy and clover with oats. The oats were a light crop. In the autumn the ash-strewn part of the field showed a good stand of clover that had resisted the drought. The remainder of the field bore only a small number of very sickly looking timothy and clover plants. There could be little doubt that the ash fertilizer, by making the plants strong and hardy, had helped them to resist the drought.

APPLE RAISERS SWINDLED

And Buncoed Out of Millions in the Foreign Markets.
Excessive Ocean Freight Rates.

By R. L. CUMMINGS, West Paris, Maine.

What are the apple men doing? Lay- ing still and being skinned? Until they wake up and stand up for their rights.

Upon what grounds do you make this statement? Upon the grounds that we are paying more than 50c per barrel more for ocean freight and 50c charges than is paid upon similar products.

Have you any proof of this? I will give you some of the facts and you can decide for yourself. Here is an account of sales of 223 barrels of apples sold Oct. 14-16, 1896. The commission charged for this sale (the sale is an auction sale on the dock where the apples are landed from the ship) is 5 per cent, similar sales in this country from 2 to 3 per cent, but grant that they are entitled to the double amount, here we find another charge under this heading:

River Dues, Portage, Sale Expenses, Cable, etc., 7 pounds, 10 shillings, 8 pence. This you will see amounts to 16.576 per barrel. This would lead one to suppose that they had paid out 16.576 on every barrel.

I have made quite an extensive inquiry and the result goes to show that they pay out 4c in direct charges, so you will say they then took 12c more from every barrel.

I have asked several agents and men connected with the sale how much of these charges were really disbursements and the only direct answer that I have ever got was that they really didn't know.

Then they charged 12c per barrel in 1896 that they wanted to conceal and we will say was excessive. Let us see what they are charging today.

Here is an account of sales of 162 barrels, Ex. S. S. Southworth, sold Jan. 7, 1910, now note the increased enumeration of charges. Our charges for dock and town dues, landing and sale expenses, portage, labor, cables, etc., including disbursements 7 pounds, 10 shillings, 6 pence, equals 30.86c or 29c.

Now let us look into the charges for freight across the water. Let us see how their charges upon apples compare with those on similar products.

Flour and hay will come as near as any. Flour is carried for 6c per hundred, hay is carried for 11 25c per hundred. It costs 10c to deliver 100 pounds of flour in Liverpool from Portland, 19c to deliver 100 pounds of hay and 57c to deliver 100 pounds (one barrel) of apples.

I will assume that the just rate on apples should not exceed the average of flour and hay which would be 14 1/2c per barrel, let us give them 1/2c for the doubt and call it 15c. The present rate for carrying apples is 57c per barrel, then we are paying 42c per barrel more on our apples than we are on similar products, add to this, the 19c excessive sale charges and we have 61c per barrel.

Let us see if they are willing to give us a square deal after they take this 61c per barrel that amounts to more than $1,000,000 every year to be taken out of our apples.

The apples are supposed to be sold at public auction, but there is no such thing as a public auction. It is a closed auction where no one can enter to buy unless he is a member of the Fruit Buyers' Association.

This Fruit Buyers' Association limits its own membership and the only way they can see fit to sell their apples is to receive the apples and charge a commission for selling are also buyers and members of this Fruit Buyers' Association.

BYRANT'S FOND.

Old New Hampshire Home.

The largest gathering at any entertainment given here for the winter was present at the opera house to witness the production of local talent, of Du-Don's melodrama, "The Old New Hampshire Home." It was a benefit night for the Village Improvement society.

Many were present from out of town and the play, which was practically a country affair with the scenes laid in some old New England town was well received and frequent applause greeted the players throughout the three acts.

Mr. Winthrop, the bluff, rugged, old New Hampshire farmer as portrayed by Mr. Rhus made a good impression in connection with the family group at the old farm. The members of this particular household were Miss Biebee as Mrs. Winthrop; Mr. Bacon as Zeb Watkins, the country boy "up to snuff"; Miss Preble as Mabel Winthrop; Miss Davis as Miss and Mrs. Currier as Tilly. We can say that Tilly the maiden sister of Mr. Winthrop, was all that was required in her role and certainly excelled in her charming love affair with the Irish tinker, known as Mickey Mullins. This venture on Tilly's part was very sudden and very soothing, but to Mr. Mullins the conditions seemed painful. Mullins, the adopted wait of the household, was quite a talker and assumed considerable responsibility in managing the affairs around the house of Farmer Winthrop.

Mr. Swan, in the part of Edward Van Dusen, the polished villian, Mr. Cole as Rawlings, in league with him, were excellent in their schemes to destroy the happiness of the Winthrop family and almost succeeded in ruining the character of Oliver Stanhope, Mabel Winthrop's lover, ably represented here by Mr. Peeverly. The humorous side of the play was ably presented in the two characters, an Irishman and a Jew.

Ernest Thompson as Moses, the Hebrew glazier, certainly came with the goods and had hold of the Jewish end of it all right. There was no question but what he was "Moses" while his colleague, the traveling tinker, represented by Mr. DeShon, as Mickey Mullins, was also something to laugh at, and they did laugh. He was not Irish but a Librarian, as he expressed it, and his characterizing of the tinker and New York policeman were two good pieces of acting. Messrs. Thompson and DeShon could hardly be improved upon in these characters "up in the country."

Between the acts a Jewish sketch and song was given by Mr. Thompson and also a fine production was rendered on and sell for a commission and also buy for a commission, and the president of the Fruit Buyers' Association was, and I think at the present time is, the largest receiver of American apples across the water.

But this is not enough, the buyer has opportunity to examine the apples as he sees fit before the sale, then when sold one barrel is turned out as a sample and the buyer bids as he sees fit. Even then the sale is not final and the buyer has a right to reject the fruit.

The receiver also has a right to sell at private sale and reserve a few barrels to send into the auction to be sold to establish the price he is to return for the large lot. Could there be a more complete device for a skinning pen than this? Let us see how this suppressed sale handles our apples.

I will give you one little example here. Recently a steamer from Portland took out a large amount of apples costing at port of export $2.75 to $3.00 per barrel. When returns came back they showed that the apples were in great condition sack wet and waxy, and nets ran as low as 75c per barrel. I presume the average would have been about $1.75 per barrel.

I had only one car on this ship and was billed to Hamburg, and by means of a special cable I prevented them from taking it out and selling it in Liverpool. These apples often being taken out in Liverpool and reshipped to Hamburg net $2.74 in Portland.

Since the advance in charges two and one-half years ago, this excessive charge of 61c per barrel on the apples shipped to England alone amounts to $3,110,540. It amounts to $2,568 10 on the three crops of apples grown upon my own farm.

How much does it amount to on your own crop for the three years past?

If you have produced 500 barrels during the three years past it amounts to $305.00.

How much will it amount to in years to come?

Let me tell you this. At this time they are getting ready to advance charges still more.

Do these figures seem too large? They certainly are large, but the figures are just what we get by cutting the charges on apples down to the basis of other good paying business.

For the sake of comparison let us figure on the business as it was in 1896, giving them the 5 per cent. commission which is double the amount charged in this country, and also the 12c per barrel rake off. We then have excessive charges left amounting to 48c per barrel. This would amount to $2,454,720 on the amount shipped since this advance in the charges at the beginning of the season 1897 and 1898.

It would amount to $287,880.96 on the apples shipped from Portland, Boston and New York this season only up to Jan. 29th.

How much will this 48c per barrel amount to to you, and what are you going to do to prevent the further increase of these charges?

Come out to our fruit meetings and let us have a thorough investigation, decide upon the best course to pursue. Things are being done now. We want to do more. Let's a hand in this work and make it your own.

Feb. 10th of this year steamer freight rates were, viz:—

Flour in sacks, 7c per 100 pounds.

Hay in bales, 11c per 100 pounds.

Wheat, 3c per bushel.

Cotton, 10c per 100 pounds.

You will see by this that the old rate of 1.6 or 32 1/2 cents was a very high rate and when we had competition you will readily see why a shipper could get a special rate on apples.

the piano by Eva Andrews. Mildred Perham had charge of the musical part of the program and was of much assistance to the company.

Leonard Whitman, whose death was announced at South Paris, Feb. 23, was a native of Woodstock. He was the son of Luther and Zilpha Whitman. His parents were early settlers on a farm in the east part and there was a large family of children, most of whom died quite early of consumption, Leonard being the last of this family. He lived on the farm here for many years. In 1873 he sold out and moved to South Paris.

Town Meeting.
 Town meeting was called to order promptly at 10 a. m., by the clerk, L. T. Barker. H. N. Hastings was elected moderator, and under his prompt action the town business was rapidly put through the mill and the 35 articles of warrant were all acted upon when the noon hour arrived. The town officers elected are: L. T. Barker, clerk; N. F. Brown, treasurer; F. E. Bean, M. L. Thurston, C. E. Barker, selectmen, assessors and overseers of the poor; Road commissioner, W. E. Emery, Collector, N. E. Richardson; auditor, W. W. Hastings, town agent, A. E. Herrick, S. B. Twitcomb was elected on the school board to succeed herself.
 The reports of the various town officers were all promptly accepted without any discussion.
 It was voted to raise the following sums of money for support of schools: $1,000; repairing schoolhouses, $200; to purchase text books, $850; paying tuition in secondary schools, $1,500; for repairs of roads and bridges, $4,500; for State road $450; $700 to build and pay land damages on new street laid out from High street to Main street; for support of poor, $1,000; for town officers, $1,500; miscellaneous expenses, $500; on town debt and interest, $1,000; to extend sewer system, $500; to repairs and road at South Bethel, $100; for Memorial day, $35.
 The article on discount of taxes was passed over as was also the article on changing interest on unpaid taxes at a certain date.
 Voted to pay 1 1/2 cents for collecting taxes, N. B. Richardson, collector.
 Voted $3 per day for man and team for work on highways.
 The selectmen were instructed to make such arrangements as they considered satisfactory with the Bethel Water Co. for a period of six months from Oct. 1, 1910 to April 1, 1911. The present agreement, which was for 20 years, expires in September of this year and no terms of agreement had been drawn up to present to the voters for the next term of 20 years or any other period, therefore the matter was disposed of for the present so that at the next annual town meeting, in March, 1911, a definite proposition can be prepared and presented for the consideration of the citizens of the town. Judge A. E. Herrick, for the water company, explained the circumstances under which the valuable water service was secured, 20 years ago, when it looked doubtful about being able to develop the system. He said it had been a mutual arrangement with concessions on both sides, each recognizing the valuable assistance that each of the parties were giving the other.
 At the close of the town meeting the Bethel Library Association served a hot dinner in the hall to all who desired at a reasonable price, the proceeds to go to the support of the public library.
 The Universalist Sunday school is preparing for an Easter concert.
 J. H. Little was called to Locke Mills, Tuesday, to attend the funeral of Mrs. Bryant.

Supreme Judicial Court.

 Maine, a prohibition state, every one knows, but not to the extent where liquor can be procured on every corner. Then there is the effect the saloon may have on the young who are growing citizens, and Maine should be proud that it is a state where these saloons are prohibited.
 Rev. Mr. Wentworth was the last speaker who said he had a lot more to say on the cause of temperance and Judge Whitman told him he should have the opportunity to finish his remarks at the next court temperance meeting in October.

Court opened, Wednesday morning, at 9:30 and the Chase case was continued. James Barnett, James McDonald and Alvin McArthur were the first witnesses of the forenoon. These young men were at the house soon after the fire was found and testified as to the manner in which the buildings were burned, and the fire place which was built some feet from the house in the front yard. Mr. Barnett was employed by the Berlin Mills Co. and stopped at this place part of the time. These were the remainder of the witnesses for the plaintiff. H. H. Hastings was the lawyer for the plaintiff.

John Delany was the first witness for the defense. Mr. Delany was in charge of the crew of men at the dam in the employ of the Berlin Mills Co. He claimed that there was nothing said in regard to taking risk of fire, simply to be careful about fire. He made similar statements regarding the fire as the others did. He said he had no right to take the responsibility of the place where the crew stopped.
 Mr. Brown was the next witness. He was the cook for the crew and worked at the dam. He said that day he was the only one at the place after breakfast and in the afternoon he built a fire in the fire place outside the house and boiled two eggs. He also built a small fire in the stove in the house and warmed up tea. After eating a little lunch he went up to Mr. Bragg's after putting out the fire with water. They saw the fire from there and went down and inside of 30 minutes the place was in ashes.

Albert W. Jenkins was the last witness who carried Mr. Brown and Mr. Bragg and their young man to the fire. He described the fire similar to the others.
 At 2:30 Wednesday afternoon the court was reopened, and Walter Gray, attorney for the defendant, gave his charge to the jury followed by the plaintiff's charge by H. H. Hastings. Judge Whitman then gave the judge's charge to the jury pointing out and defining the points of law regarding the circumstances of the case and making plain the doubtful points which arose. The jury then retired to the jury room and after the space of 2 hours and 8 minutes returned the verdict in favor of the plaintiff, Charles Chase, for $454.10 for damages. The completed work for the day and the court adjourned till 9:30 Thursday morning.

A divorce was granted William Stanley of Kezar Falls. This was the case where there was a misunderstanding between Mr. Stanley and the court regarding the granting of his divorce and was heard at the last term of court.

One Doctor—Only One

No sense in running from one doctor to another! Select the best one, then stand by him. No sense either in trying this thing, that thing, for your cough. Carefully, deliberately select the best cough medicine, then take it. Stick to it. Ask your doctor about Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for throat and lung troubles. Sold for nearly seventy years. No alcohol in this cough medicine. J.C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Why try this thing, that thing, for your constipation? Why not stick to the good old reliable family laxative—Ayer's Pills? Ask your doctor if he approves this advice.

A bank which takes deep hold upon the confidence and respect of the people at large is by all odds the proper place for funds when safety is wanted.

Such an institution, and no others, is well prepared to weather any and every financial disturbance which may arise in the course of the years.

A bank's strongest advantage is at this point—without it, gold and time locks, stone, brick and big figures are all chaff and sawdust.

Be sure of your money by entrusting the keeping of it to such a bank. The facilities of this bank, of over 38 years uninterrupted service, are at your disposal.

Wonderful Praise Accorded Perunathe Household Remedy

Mrs. Maria Goertz, Orienta, Oklahoma, writes: "My husband, children and myself have used your medicines, and we always keep them in the house in case of necessity. I was restored to health by this medicine, and Dr. Hartman's invaluable advice and books. People ask about me from different places, and are surprised that I can do all of my housework alone, and that I was cured by the doctor of chronic catarrh. My husband was cured of asthma, my daughter of earache and catarrh of the stomach, and my son of catarrh of the throat. When I was sick I weighed 100 pounds; now I weigh 140.

"I have regained my health again, and I cannot thank you enough for your advice. May God give you a long life and bless your work."

OXFORD.

George Haslop who recently died and a sketch was published in the ADVERTISER, was born Sept 13, 1863 at Kendal, Westmorland county, England. He attended the schools there and came to America when a young man and came to Oxford in 1887. June 4, 1881, he married Mary M., eldest daughter of William and Hester Baxter. She survives him with one son. There are other relatives and friends here and two sisters in England. The funeral services at the funeral were beautiful including the following:

Foreword about Millinery.

As soon as the milliners begin to display their wares for spring, a woman must select a knobabout straw, as this is the kind of head covering most suitable for general running about and traveling during the entire summer and autumn, as well as the spring. In this line the rough straws are by far the best and very smart looking. Almost any woman can wear a rough straw, and these require very little trimming. A cheap straw hat demands considerable trimming, whereas the decided lines of the high-class blockings need only a bow set at precisely the proper angle.

Among the new spring straw hats the rough ones have no trimming with the exception of a black velvet bow of good size set flatly against the front side of the brim. Other hats have the bows resting directly against the crown, with the ends of a loop or two projecting above it. When additional height is desired by the wearer an aigrette or a small bunch of fancy wigs can be used.

Napoleons will be more popular this spring than ever and during the early part of spring the milliners will bring out this line in many varieties. These shapes are especially adapted for the younger girls. As the hair is now worn quite low, the Napoleon sets well over the brow, but the position of the points of the tricorn depends almost wholly upon the shape of the face beneath it. In the case of an oval contour the points may project directly over each ear and the brim flares straight up from the brow. A well-rounded face appears to better advantage if the brim flares slightly toward the left side with one point alives and tipping just forward of the right ear. This trimming is an important matter. The fact that the Napoleon shape does not become every woman is no reason why she should abandon it. It is possible to make the shape quite becoming by the upstanding arrangement of a big bow, a wing or an aigrette.

Many women who appreciate the softening effect of the velvet-lined hat brim are delighted with the return of this fashion after an absence of almost a decade. This applies to the shapes that have the upward flare, and especially to the Napoleon. Then there are the popular leghorns, which never show to better advantage than when faced with black velvet. An inch-wide band of velvet may outline the upper edge of the brim.

Rose garlands will be a popular feature among the spring hat trimmings and there is surely nothing quite so dainty as these blossoms, although they are very fragile and cannot be worn at all times. Sometimes the roses wreath the crown of the hat, lying close against it in order that no outline of the shape may be sacrificed. Or the wreath is wound partially over the upturned brim and in some instances literally outlines it at all times. Sometimes the roses are the crown of the hat, lying close against it in order that no outline of the shape may be sacrificed. Or the wreath is wound partially over the upturned brim and in some instances literally outlines it at all times. Sometimes the roses are the crown of the hat, lying close against it in order that no outline of the shape may be sacrificed. Or the wreath is wound partially over the upturned brim and in some instances literally outlines it at all times.

When a woman is in doubt as to what color hat to purchase it is best for her to select black. Milliners who have arranged the fashions for the spring and summer claim that any woman may be excused for making black her first choice, for never were such straws so chic as this year. They are not suggestive of mourning, for in nearly every instance the rose-mat or basket-hat has a trimming of widely contrasting hue. The white trimmings which frequently take the place of a huge maline chon are high in favor. Like many of the other spring hats, the flower toque will be worn well over the brow this spring.

This is partly because of the arrangement of the hair and partly because the crowns themselves are larger at the base, which usually is defined by a band of velvet or ribbon twisted in and out of the foliage. For toques many of the finely patterned flowers are used and always with happy effect, as the line of velvet at the edge of the brim lends a softening expression to the face. Flowers coming directly against the brow are trying to even the most youthful expression, and the milliner who thoroughly understands her art sees that each toque is velvet edged.

Women have learned that the drooping brim subtracts years from the age of the face, and each season a certain number of such hats are always in demand. The spring shapes for this year show various modifications of the Russian turban, and the latter can be classed among the dip-brim variety. The greatest license is accorded in the matter of trimming such shapes. Press and times.

Millions of Lives Lost.

An Awful Toll Collected by Consumption. Many Unnecessary Deaths from this Disease.

If people could only understand that systemic catarrh is an internal disease that external applications cannot cure, they would not need to be warned so often about this malady, which, when neglected, paves the way oftentimes for consumption, at the cost of millions of lives every year. Yet catarrh may be cured, if the right treatment is employed.

Catarrh is caused by a general diseased state of the system which leads commonly to annoying and perhaps serious local conditions, which may prove a fertile breeding ground for germs of consumption. External remedies give but temporary ease.

The only way to successfully treat catarrh is by employing a medicine which is absorbed and carried by the blood to all parts of the system, so that the mucous membrane or internal lining of the body is found up and made capable of resisting the infection of consumption and other diseases.

We have a remedy prepared from the prescription of a physician who for thirty years studied and made catarrh a specialty, and whose record was a patient restored to health in every case where his treatment was followed as prescribed. That remedy is Rexall Mucuo-Tone. We are so positive that it will completely overcome catarrh in all its various forms whether acute or chronic, that we promise to return every penny paid us for the medicine in every case where it fails or for any reason does not satisfy the user.

We want you to try Rexall Mucuo-Tone on our recommendation and guarantee. We are right here where you live, and you do not contract any obligation or risk when you try Rexall Mucuo-Tone on our guarantee. We have Rexall Mucuo-Tone in two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00. Very often the taking of one 54-cent bottle is sufficient to make a marked impression upon the case. Of course in chronic cases a longer treatment is necessary. The average in such instances is three $1.00 bottles. Remember you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Norway only at our store, The Rexall Store, P. P. Stone, Main street.

Points For Mothers

"Those who bring sunshine to the lives of others cannot keep it from themselves." This is a mother's motto surely. Sad to say, however, there are mothers who do try to bring sunshine to others, but fail utterly and envelop themselves in black clouds, with never a silver lining in sight. Others seem contented to dispense "sunshine" without getting even a small sunbeam in return. Happily some seem to be veritable "sunshine batteries," sending out little currents to those with whom they come in contact.

One poor mother is faded and careworn. She dreads her daughter's stockings and mends all her clothes and even makes her party dresses. This mother loves her daughter dearly and regrets that "the child" is so selfish and apparently so unappreciative, thinking only of her own frivolities and giving never a thought to or doing a kindness for her mother. She longs to be her daughter's confidant and is often jealous of her daughter's girl friends. She is irritable and fretful (because overworked and tired) and worries over things that do not really matter, and her daughter misinterprets her and usually considers that "mother is unreasonable" and has "queer ideas."

The "sunshine" mother is younger looking, happy and more "up to date." She teaches her daughter to darn her own stockings and to mend her own clothes and even to make her own party dresses, but is always ready to help and plan and discuss. She enters into her daughter's pleasures with real interest and makes friends with her daughter's friends; talks over little secrets and softens, molds, influences and advises. "In the girl," "mother" is considered "one of the girls" and is in great demand as chaperon.

The secret of it all is that she has adapted herself to the ideas of the next generation, although retaining and remembering her own girlhood.

Old Dutch Cradles.

Baby's bath is now mounted on trestles so as to save stooping on the part of the nurse, while the cot and basket are almost always of the folding variety, draped with hemstitched and embroidered lawn threaded with satin ribbons or with embroidered net.

Occasionally a reproduction of an old Dutch cradle with quilted satin, this will be lined with quilted satin. The newest quilts are stuffed with vegetable fiber or wood wool which comes from Sweden. These are beautifully light and porous and are recommended for hygienic reasons.

When baby takes his daily constitutional it is in a perambulator with silver fittings, a crest or monogram on its white enamelled surface. Sometimes the carriage is even upholstered in white, and the cover may be of fine linen trimmed with real Irish crochet, while in winter it will be of opossum or Tibet goat.

Cure For Warts.

A wart is essentially an outgrowth of the scarf skin. It may be brought about by friction. Hence it may be found on the quite healthy skin of a healthy person, just as a corn may be found. But warts sometimes come without friction, and they come numerous, so proving that there must be some internal cause. Wart crops are specially apt to appear between early childhood and the sixteenth year. They are found most usually in children of poor physique. They have been known to make sudden appearance when the child has fallen into poor health and to go away when the health has improved. Small doses of calcium magnesium salt taken daily during many weeks or months have been found effective in getting rid of these warts.

Dolly Party Game.

A "doll hunt" is a delightful way to entertain the little folks at this season. Arrange in the center of the parlor a cabinet with bright colored strings. Attach to each string a card bearing the name of the doll to be found. After much intricate winding each child is to find a doll. In another room hang a clothesline, where each little girl is to find a dainty frock to fit her new found treasure. Let the little ones dress their dolls and afterward serve simple refreshments.

Hamper For Nursery Made of Parasol.

The daintiest nursery hamper imaginable is made from a plain white linen parasol turned upside down and fitted to a small modern standard. A tiny lace fill is placed around the edge, and linen pockets are sewed across the sections inside for soap, powder and other toilet articles. It may be easily carried about by the handle. On one side embody baby's monogram in pink linen thread.

Hard on the Baby.

Here is some advice that appeared in a paper for mothers the other day: "The bottle must be kept perfectly clean. When the babe has finished drinking it should be unscrewed and laid in a cool place under the tap." One feels rather sorry for any babies thus treated.

Dr. Daniel's Horse Renovator—for your horse—Makes Blood—gives vim, strength and health.

Brotherhood.

Be consistent. We are prone to forget that out of the things that seem of the least importance, the greatest good often comes. That which seems of the least consequence becomes of the greatest value in order to

A pleasant word, a smile of greeting has lifted the heart bowed down, giving renewed courage to pursue the dull routine or fierce struggles of life with renewed strength.

See the tiny violet down in the hidden recesses of the valley, often crushed by the heedless tread of feet, and overshadowed by the towering sunflower, yet the beauty and sweetness of the violet linger long after the lofty sunflower has been forgotten.

So the good life, with good and true thoughts and purposes set forth in words which tend to uplift will live bearing precious fruit, long after the mere butterfly of fashion and her unwholesome rattle have ceased to grace the halls of earth, have been forgotten.

Let us not fail to consider the things which seem small and of the least importance. Let us not cast about us for some great and weighty thing to do, something that will help out our reputation of aristocracy, but rather aim for the high calling, the mighty purpose of fulfilling the law of brotherhood, and light and love.

Between Meal Mats.

It is no longer the fashion to keep the dining table even partially set between meals. This means more work for the table must be dismantled three times a day, but the reason for this is not a mere whim. The dining room developed from the kitchen where formerly the family ate what was cooked on the nearby range. When the separate room was taken the table was set after each meal in order to be ready for the next. The tidy housewife often kept the dining room closed except when in actual use and it did not matter, especially in the dustless country house, if the cups and plates were on the table instead of behind doors of the china closet.

Now the dining table is much in evidence, for its furnishings often cost more than those of any other room in the house and the housewife is constantly tempted to add to its belongings. City houses as well as bungalows are built so that the reception hall, living room and dining room are practically one. The separation is often nothing more than posts or some grill work at the top marking the supposed line between the rooms. It is, therefore, no longer sanitary or pleasant to have table furnishings in apparent use through the entire day.

A bare table needs some ornament, yet a large cloth is now seldom seen, for the modern dining table is too handsome to conceal. What are called "between meal mats" are used from 24 to 30 inches in diameter if round, or 24 to 30 or more inches long for square-cornered table.

The foolish fashion of using perishable centerpieces of fine linen richly embroidered with silks, has gone out and in its place is taken heavy cream or gray linen, often decorated with stenciling or tinted pattern outlined with silk. Others are plain linen merely bordered with coarse lace. Such pieces are not expensive and will bear hard usage while they are much more decorative than the old-fashioned centerpieces.

The handsome silk embroidery is now used, as it ought to be, under glass to make small table tops or trays. Less of this painstaking sort of work is likely to be done again now that so many women are interested in outdoor life and others have forsaken the quiet of needlework for the excitement of cards.

Chickens for Market.

Good Hints on Raising Chickens by One of Our Rising Young Men.

If farmers realized how great a gain can be made on chickens by confining them ten days or two weeks, more would take up the practice.

Chickens on range grow bone and muscle and develop strong constitutions, but are not apt to be sufficiently plump to sell to good advantage as broilers. After they reach about two pounds in weight on the range, if they are confined to a small run and on soft food, it takes a very long time to gain one additional pound each. This method not only makes rapid gain, but tends to combine more fat with the meat, making it better quality and more juicy.

Chickens must be taken, however, not to confine them too long, but to keep them to lose their appetite it is time to sell; but the period of good appetite may be prolonged by furnishing them some green food to keep them in good condition.

My method is this: I have a pen with lathes nailed vertically about one and a half inches apart. A board is laid on the floor or ground and the mash is placed on this, which gives them a chance to put their heads through the slats and eat and at the same time keeps their feet out of the food.

My mash is made as follows for say thirty-five chicks: One quart of meal over which boiling water is poured to swell and thicken it. Into this I stir another quart of meal, one of bran and a good handful of molasses. This I feed twice daily, morning and night. I think two feeds a day better than three for even with a light feed at noon they fail to attack their mash at night with eagerness. They need to fill up as full as possible for the night. Under this treatment they plump out rapidly and weigh well and are more easily disposed of.

GREENWOOD.

The person writing for a farm paper that spoke in praise of the seed annual with its colored pages and vivid description of new varieties of garden seeds as the first real harbinger of spring hit the nail squarely on the head. Before its arrival we have no thought of spring, or, if we do, as a remote possibility having nothing in common with the grim old winter of the present. But when it does arrive, be the weather ever so severe, blow the wind ever so hard, with the mercury in the thermometer hovering around the vanishing point,

OXFORD.
A Serious Accident.
On Friday morning, March 4th, Mrs. Nellie Walker received a telephone message to come to Lewiston. C. M. G. hospital at once, as her sister, Mrs. Julia Russell of Auburn, was in a serious condition. Mrs. Walker found her sister terribly burned about the feet, legs and left thigh.

Mrs. Russell came down stairs at 5:30 Friday morning, with a kerosene lamp in her right hand and part of her clothing on her left arm. In coming down the stairs she accidentally struck the point of her elbow, what we call the funny bone, a sharp blow. It made her feel faint at once, but she managed to get to the sitting-room door, push it open and enter, when she became unconscious and fell to the floor face downward. The lamp was not broken but the burner was torn off, allowing the oil to run out and feed the flame.

Fortunately Mrs. Russell was not burned about the body. She was unconscious long enough to be terribly burned. The groans of anguish roused her husband, who rushed down stairs and wrapped her in a blanket. Her doctor summoned medical help, and she was taken to the C. M. G. hospital.

Mrs. Russell was burned so badly that she was not expected to live during Friday and Saturday. Since Saturday at midnight, her condition has been somewhat improved, and she is now able to sit up enough to withstand the drain resulting from the sloughs of burned tissue that must come away, has a good fighting chance of recovery.

An Accident on Fore Street.
Monday afternoon, Dr. Haskell, accompanied by his wife and boy, was driving along the Fore street road, and when near the upper railroad crossing his horse took fright. In attempting to control the animal one of the reins broke. The horse went into the ditch and fell, overturning the covered sleigh. Dr. Haskell quickly got to the horse's head, holding him down, while Mrs. Haskell endeavored to release the boy and herself from the wreck. She found there was trouble, and the investigation revealed the fact that she had received a fracture of one of her limbs. Help was summoned and she was removed to her home. Dr. Oakes was called from Poland Springs, and the fracture was properly treated.

NORWAY AND VICINITY.
James Willis Crommett.

The community was much shocked on Wednesday night when it learned of the death of James Willis Crommett, a resident of Norway for more than 35 years.

Mr. Crommett, who has been an invalid for the past two years and a half was out on the street Wednesday afternoon. He was in the usual health. He was down to the table about 5 o'clock and a few minutes past five dropped dead. Death was caused by valvular heart trouble.

He was born April 21, 1855, and was the son of James and Esther Moore Crommett. He attended school in Norway, and later in Boston. In 1878, on the 19th of October he married Elizabeth Hopkins, who survived him, also two sons Norman Alvin Crommett of Philadelphia, who works in the Midvale Steel and Iron Works and Carl Willis Crommett of New York who has been at home a short time.

Mr. Crommett has worked in the shoe shop. Several seasons he operated the large steamer, the Pennesseewassee at the Henrietta on Lake Pennesseewassee.

Mr. Crommett attended the Congregational church and in politics was a Republican. He was a member of the Odd Fellows, the Encampment and Masons.

The funeral will be held Sunday afternoon.

Gospel Services.
Gospel services are being held at Universalist church this week Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

Wednesday evening the meeting opened with a song service by the congregation led by Mrs. B. F. Bradbury. There was special music which consisted of songs by Mrs. Frank Kimball, Mrs. F. Bradbury and Mrs. Geo. Burnham South Paris, solo by Mrs. Lester Co and a duet by Beryl and Myrtle M. Rev. Chas. A. Hayden preached a powerful sermon from the text, 17:22, "And the glory which thou gavest me I have given them. He showed the secret of Christ's power was in transmitting his gifts to his disciples that possessions are not to be hoarded but passed along."

This service was a very interesting and there was a good number present.
